LGBTQ+ Persons in Latin America and the Caribbean: Measuring Population Sizes and Obstacles to Economic and Social Inclusion

RG-K1198

Summary

Very little is known about lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender/transsexual, queer and other (LGBTQ+) populations in Latin American and the Caribbean countries. How many individuals identify as LGBTQ+? What are the gaps they face and their specific needs in terms of policy action? In light of these questions, the Latin American and Caribbean Research Network announces a call for proposals for the project “LGBTQ+ Persons in Latin America and the Caribbean: Measuring Population Sizes and Obstacles to Economic and Social Inclusion.”
